

The international journal of science / 9 April 2026

nature

A satellite image of Earth at night, showing the continents of Africa, Europe, and Asia. The landmasses are covered in a dense network of yellow and white lights, representing human activity. The oceans are dark, and the atmosphere is visible as a thin blue layer. The sun is visible on the right side of the image, creating a bright glow and a lens flare effect.

LIGHT SHOW

Satellite imagery
reveals volatile
footprint of human
nocturnal activity